Teamwork

- History/Growth of Integrum Team
 - We had a problem
 - Identified a possible solution
 - We refine and redefine the solution constantly
- Five Dysfunctions
 - #1: Absence of Trust
 - The fear of being vulnerable with team members prevents the building of trust within the team
 - #2: Fear of Conflict
 - The desire to preserve artificial harmony stifles the occurrence of productive, ideological conflict.
 - #3: Lack of Commitment
 - The lack of clarity or buy-in prevents team members from making decisions they will stick to.
 - #4: Avoidance of Accountability
 - The need to avoid interpersonal discomfort prevents team members from holding one another accountable for their behaviors and performance.
 - #5: Inattention to Results
 - The pursuit of individual goals and personal status erodes the focus on collective success.
- How a self-organized team can solve these problems
 - Self-organization is a process of attraction and repulsion in which the internal organization of a system, normally an open system, increases in complexity without being guided or managed by an outside source.
 - Those closest to the problem organize the solution
 - Its easier to reveal problems
 - Constant improvement
 - Measurement of outcomes
- What conditions are necessary to start building highly-functioning team?
 - Managers don't take advantage of "negative" information
 - Retrospectives
 - Plan for success
 - Clearly defined boundaries
 - Self-organizing vs. Self-directing

- Constant communication
- Team advocate
- Standup
- Five Whys
